Glass³

Three recent graduates from Plymouth College of Art feature in this show. Richie Alli and David Roberts graduated this summer and Louise Cloke is embarking on her final year of a part-time course. All three have already begun to establish themselves as highly skilled designer-makers at a very early stage in their career.

David Roberts makes sculptural kiln glass, drawing inspiration from fossils found on visits to the Dorset coast. Richie Alli's work was originally inspired by seeing the effect man had on woodland near Plymouth, with large clearings left with stacked logs revealing the patterns and textures of timber. Louise Cloke also draws her inspiration from nature, her current range of work developed after a visit to the Eden Project where the diversity in shape and appearance of cacti particularly caught her eye.
